FINAL YEAR PROJECT

Cork Institute of Technology

Final Semester

Geo-Learn is a web-based treasure hunting application, designed as an interactive quests for 12-17 year olds when visiting learning centers. The application challenges users to find clues, scan them, acquire a piece of knowledge, validate that knowledge and in turn receive a cryptic clue and tools to continue the quest. This project required additional research and study into the use of geo-location techniques, QR code generation, database programming and user experience studies to create the application.
